

November / December 2007

Buyer's Guide to Building Products and Services

Wall Street Journal Office Network for Elevators Launched by Office Media Network

The Office Media Network (OMN) has launched The Wall Street Journal Office Network (The WSJ Office Network) for elevators, expanding its current service beyond the lobbies and common areas of office buildings. The WSJ Office Network delivers the world's leading business news, information and customized property announcements to office buildings on state-of-the-art, flat-panel LCD screens. The expansion into elevators is the next step in enhancing service by delivering the most relevant stream of business news and information for tenants and visitors in office buildings.

For more information, visit www.officemedia.com.